“It was really inspiring to learn about someone else’s culture and someone else’s history... It can be exciting to look at ways in which people think.”

-Jordan Stine, History Major

Perhaps you have found yourself wondering...

“How does the past affect the present?”

“What shapes historical events?”

“How did the past affect different people?”

“Why and how do nations and people change over time?”

These are only a few of the probing questions that we ask in History. In history classes, you will read primary sources produced by a diverse array of individuals and secondary works created by historians interpreting the past. Along the way, you will sharpen your analytical skills and communication abilities, and develop a richer understanding of our world, past and present that can lead to fascinating careers in a variety of fields.
